

Got math? High school math impacts college enrollment rates

High school math is especially important for low-income, first-generation college students. The higher level of math taken, the more likely a student is to enroll in college.

64%

Algebra II and Beyond

34%

Up to Algebra II

11%

Algebra I and Geometry only

Percentage of high school graduates who enrolled in a four-year institution, by math courses taken

Source: State of Student Aid and Higher Education in Texas 2006

* Whose parents did not go to college

Edufacts™ provided as a public service by TG.

© 2006 TG

TG™